

What is it like to be a Park Ranger?

I like working with the public and introducing them to new outdoor activities.

-Mikayla, Assistant Manager

It's a lifestyle. It can be demanding, but the work is rewarding. It's a unique experience not everyone gets to have.

-Jamie, Park Manager

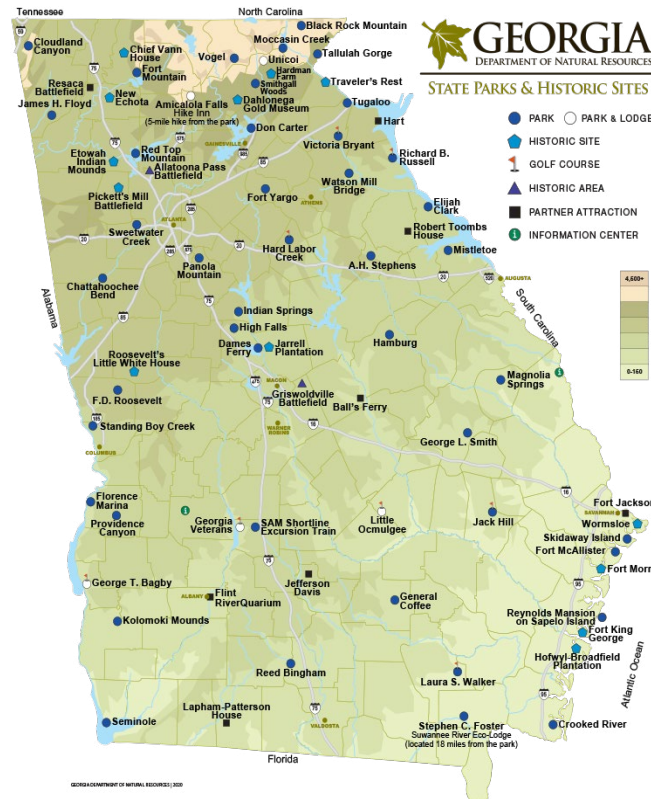

I get to use my creativity and imagination when making new programs.

-Erica, Interpretive Ranger

The best office view, better than any corporate job you could imagine.

-David, Park Manager

Positions in Georgia State Parks and Historic Sites

Internships

- Interns learn about park and historic site operations and resource management. The goal of an internship is to integrate a student's academic experience with real-world applications.
- Many sites offer unpaid internships for academic requirements. Some sites offer paid internships as well.
- Internships are offered year-round. Positions depend on the availability of a particular park or historic site.
- Some offer housing while some do not.

Seasonal Naturalist

- Some parks hire people from March - November as a longer "season" and other parks hire staff from mid-May through Labor Day just for the busy summer months. Some parks hire Naturalists to work 29 hrs./week year round.
- Depending on the park or historic site, responsibilities include leading hikes or tours, conducting nature programs and campfire programs, leading games and other recreational activities and conducting a Junior Ranger Day Camp for children.
- Some parks and historic sites offer housing and some have no housing options.

Manager in Training (MIT)

- The MIT program is designed to teach overall site operation. Upon completion, the individual should have the knowledge to prepare them to compete for Parks and Historic Sites Division (PHSD) vacancies.
- Full-time, 1-year term position, $23,420.42 annually.
- MIT positions include on-site housing.
- MIT's are assigned to parks and sites throughout the state including A.H. Stephens, Cloudland Canyon, Hard Labor Creek, Tugaloo and Stephen C. Foster.
